

Yes. The p-value is greater than the 5% cutoff, so we can reject the null hypothesis. The null hypothesis was that Clinton attracts small donors at the same rate as Sanders. Rejecting the null, we can conclude that they attract small donors at different rates.

