

Because the California primary was one of the last primaries, the outcome of the election is already mostly fixed. This may have changed the behavior of small donors, who may choose to donate based on whether or not they feel that their preferred candidate 'needs their help'

